

This matter does not appear to be carefully researched. Other countries are experiencing interference to the amateur radio bands. The last thing we need is to have some beaucrats move forward with a plan without doing their homework. Amateur radio has been around for quite some time and deserves more consideration/protection from what appears to be a steam roller effort to move forward with this plan and ask questions later. (When it will be too late)